Stitching for babies seems to have universal appeal. Whether it's the size of the project or the overwhelming cuteness of the final results, baby sweaters, booties, hats, blankies and toys are baby-licious right now. Take a look in the Caron Pattern Library for some of your favorites...

Embroidered Caftan
A little overstitching in contrasting colors makes this tiny pullover special.

Pretty Posie Hoodie
More easy embroidery lets you made this sweet hoodie even sweeter.

Rainbow Bear
More loveable than the Rainbow Fish and the Velveteen Rabbit combined, our patchwork bear in Simply Soft Brites is a sure winner in the nursery.

What are your fellow stitchers making most often right now? Afghans and throws are most popular, followed by items for babies, wraps and shawls, items for children and sweaters. Let us know what's on your needles and hooks and we'll post it to our blog! Write to editor@caron-connections.com

Wearing your heart on your sleeve" takes a new twist with this lovely crocheted Chakra Purse from Kim Rutledge. She's designed a heart right into the flap of the purse, making it a subtle focal point for the design and a "lovely" theme for the overall creation. You'll enjoy working with Spa for this pattern, as its slightly lighter weight makes the crocheted fabric dense enough for a purse, but not too heavy. Read what Kim has to say about the Chakra purse on Cari's blog, the NaturallyCaron.com Notebook.

Mothers and grandmothers of little boys, rejoice! Marilyn Losee has designed just the right dressy vest for the little Tommy, Taylor or Timmy tearing around your house. Cabled front and back, this knit vest has just enough color contrast at the neck, armholes and hem to create a custom garment to your toddler's taste.
